

Trakehner Breeder Praises Brooks Rations

Feeding horses with Warmblood breeding often presents challenges unique from other horses. Maintaining a focused attitude while excelling in extremely disciplined equestrian activities as well as maintaining optimum weight and fitness requires careful management and well formulated feeds.

Consider the rigors of competition and then add the unique needs of a breeding stallion and you have the challenges faced by breeder Kelley Willemze of Orangeville Ontario and Brooks representative Laurie Clarke.

Here in her own words is Kelley's assessment of how Laurie's suggestions and her own good management have benefited her program.

Photo by Dragonfyne Design

“My Trakehner Stallion Tagaelen has been on Brook's Phase V for the last three years. He has remained very even-tempered and been able to keep good weight on, even with the rigors of competition and breeding season combined.

My broodmares are on Phase II and all look wonderful throughout their pregnancies and the foals have all shown steady even growth.

My Brook's rep. convinced me that I could actually feed less of the Brook's feed than the feed I had previously been using and achieve a better result, and she was right!

I'm thrilled with how my horses look and behave on Brook's feed.”

Kelley Willemze,
Orangeville, Ontario. 26 Aug 08 09